REVENGE HELD TO BE MOTIVE

Hotel Owner Was Victor Recently In Race For County Office

(Associated Press)

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 28—Miss Jeanette Brubaech, 19 years old, died here today, the third victim of a mail bomb that exploded in the lobby of her father's hotel, the Three Lakes Tavern, yesterday.

William R. Frank, 22, of Chicago, who was to have been married Saturday to Miss Brubaech, was killed instantly and August Brubaech, her father, died shortly after the explosion.

Officers promised an arrest sometime today. They have learned that the small package, much the same as would be used in sending a box of cigars was, mailed at the Muskegon postoffice Wednesday afternoon.

Sheriff Bovell and Prosecutor Dunn left Muskegon after midnight on a secret mission and had not returned early today. One postal inspector is here and two others are enroute from Chicago.

Only one theory is held, that the bomb was inspired and mailed because of the bitter political hatred of Brubaech, who was supervisor of Blue Lake township.

"Gus never had an enemy in his life other than those who became so bitter over his election," said Mrs. Krubaech.

A year ago, Krubaech, running for election as supervisor, encountered vigorous opposition from the Ku Klux Klan. He was defeated. There were charges and counter charges at the time and there was an arrest and conviction for illegal voting.

Last month Krubaech and his entire slate swept to an easy victory, only 21 votes being registered against him.

The package containing the bomb was delivered by a rural mail carrier yesterday morning at a time when members of the family were deep in the preparation for the wedding of Jeanette and Frank.

Jeanette and Miss Myrtle Whittier, of Chicago, who was to have been the bridesmaid, ran out to greet the mail man and Jeanette was as excited as a child when she took the package, believing it to be a wedding gift, although it was addressed to her father.

Asa K. Bartlett, township constable and leader of the political opposition to Krubaech, was arrested today in connection with the bombing. "We have highly important evidence," was all Prosecutor Dunn would say when he arrived at the jail with Bartlett.

Davis Is Returned From Kilby Prison

A. L. (Shorty) Davis, convicted and sentenced to 40 years for the slaying of Robert (Jeff) Howell, both men of Hartselle, was returned here Thursday afternoon and placed in the Morgan County jail, Davis' case was reversed and will be heard at a later date. John R. Sample, Hartselle attorney is counsel in his defense. Davis was returned here by Jim Mullins, accompanied by J. G. Allison. The trip was made through the country.

Heavy Court Docket Promised In August

Meeting with attorneys Thursday afternoon it was decided by James E. Horton, circuit court judge, that there will be no term of that court during June, when it was thought probable that a two weeks session of the equity docket would be heard. It was decided that a probable two weeks in August, the latter part, will be utilized for the hearing of criminal and civil dockets. The term will extend into the regular session in September to be held for four weeks. The six weeks term was asked owing to a heavy docket in both civil and criminal cases.

New Members To Be Welcomed Sunday

Members of the First Christian church who came into the church during the recent revival services held in that church under the capable leadership of Rev. E. N. Anthony will be welcomed Sunday morning. A reception service will be held. A good song service and an appropriate sermon will be given.

Athens-Ardmore Road Is Closed

The six mile stretch of highway just north of Athens, on the Bee Line highway, designated as the Athens-Ardmore road, is closed temporarily as work continues for placing that portion of the highway in first class condition. It is believed that the roadway will be closed but a short while. At the completion of the present work the highway will be open and passable at all times of the year.

Two Schools Here Have Had A Very Pleasing Year

WEEK HAS BEEN BRILLIANT ONE

The Graduating Classes Have Had Honors Heaped on Them

Bringing to a close one of the most successful school years on record, Albany and Decatur school commencement exercises closed tonight with the class day exercises at Albany high school. Decatur exercises closed early in the week after a score or more of brilliant affairs heaping honors upon the members of the graduating class. The honors accorded Albany graduates has not been less and the two student bodies have been the center of masses of activity since the close of the examination period.

Decatur high school on Tuesday night graduated a class of some twenty young men and young women. Albany high school last night graduated a class of forty-five students.

With perhaps more than 1,200 people crowded into the Princess theater on last evening an interesting commencement program was opened with the invocation given by Rev. E. Floyd Olive in impressive manner. A splendid chorus of the senior class, directed by Mrs. H. O. Troup with Miss Imogene Winton at the piano, rendered "The Fisherman." Announcements were made by Superintendent Greenhill who introduced Rev. J. D. Hunter. Rev. Hunter, in turn, introduced Judge Hugh Allan Locke, speaker of the occasion, speaking of the Birmingham jurist as a "man of the Old South, brought up on prayer and hickory, a prominent character and a Christian gentleman."

Judge Locke delivered one of the most interesting and electrifying addresses ever heard here his theme being in the form of an appeal to the graduating class, asking that they attain further goals, refusing to stop at the goal now attained. He asked that they place dependence in themselves, pray for a knowledge of their daily tasks, serve their fellowmen and their God and press onward and upward.

AFTER the British strike the usual thing happens, labor leaders fight among themselves, politicians fight each other, but not the men within their own camp. They attack the other party. Labor fights labor, and makes it easy for statesmanship and capital, Siamese twins to run the government.

Cook, leader of the miners, accuses, J. M. Thomas, head of the railway unions, and MacDonald, formerly labor prime minister of deserting the mine workers. This suits British capital and statesmanship, and will postpone the organizing of another general strike.

Colbert County Jail Is Scene Of Attack On Deputy

FIVE PRISONERS PREFER TO STAY

All Who Made Dash To Liberty Were Held On Serious Charges

(Associated Press)

TUSCUMBIA, Ala., May 28—Hiding behind an inner jail door, two prisoners slugged Chief Deputy B. R. Hollingsworth as he entered the section of the jail where the cells are located, into an unconscious state last night, at the Colbert County jail, and, with four more prisoners whom they released, ran to freedom.

None of them had been captured today. Chief Deputy Hollingsworth was left lying in an unconscious state with four huge gashes in his head after the six prisoners grabbed his keys and unlocked the balance of the doors.

All of the prisoners were being held on serious charges, five of them for burglary and one for murder.

Five prisoners refused to leave the jail with them and awaited the return of Sheriff Cobb, although every door of the jail was open to freedom.

The last prisoner to escape told Hollingsworth, who was still on the floor, partly unconscious, that he was going down to see about the last door of the outside. He also made a get-away.

Hollingsworth had just locked the prisoners in their individual cells, from a runway that they have. He entered the white portion of the jail and entered their room. Two were hiding behind the door and beat him to the ground, one witness said. The prisoners left in the jail said that they did not know whether it was planned or not and that it happened so quickly that they could scarcely

MR. ROCKEFELLER is the richest and a most philanthropic Baptist. The Rev. Dr. Fosdick is a reasonable, learned, convincing man. The church is injured by strife. Edgar Ryan, Falkville man, is not expected to live, it was reported today from Falkville. Ryan was seriously injured when the Ford car which he was driving is said to have been demolished by Southbound Louisville and Nashville train No 5, as Ryan was attempting to cross from the west side at Falkville. Ryan's condition was described as very critical with only a slight chance for recovery. His principal injuries, it is understood, are about the head.

Mr. Ryan is an employee of Smith Bros., lumber firm and is understood to have been attempting to cross at the west side of Falkville upper crossing Wednesday afternoon when the accident occurred. According to details from Falkville today Mr. Ryan is understood to have halted his car to allow the passage of a northbound freight train. It is declared that he watched a switching freight as he started on across the tracks and probably was unaware of the approaching southbound accommodation. It is understood that the impact of the collision carried the car and its occupant ten feet beyond the scene of the crash.

Ryan is declared to be a man of family and a resident in the Falkville section where he is well known.

First aid was administered immediately following the accident by Dr. W. L. Stringer who later accompanied the patient to Birmingham where the latter was placed in St. Vincent's.

Condition Critical (Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28—Edgar Ryan, of Falkville, is in a critical condition at St. Vincent's hospital here today, suffering from injuries received when a train ran into an automobile in which he was riding, near his home.

Ryan was brought to the hospital late Wednesday and has been unconscious since then. The extent of his injuries are a fractured skull and a broken neck, hospital attaches said.

Cars Damaged In Walnut St. Smash

A Chrysler sedan, driven by Mrs. E. L. Morrow, was badly damaged and a Ford sedan said to have been driven by Julian Bronough and owned by Evon Buchanan was damaged as the result of an automobile smash near the intersection of Walnut and Ferry streets near the noon hour today. Mrs. Morrow was the only occupant of the Chrysler while it is understood that there were several occupants of the Ford car.

Red Batson Will Appeal To People

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28—S. R. (Red) Batson, ousted from the board of revenue of Jefferson County at his second impeachment trial, will not carry his case to higher courts. Instead he "will appeal to the people of Jefferson County for vindication."

This appeal, a statement issued by Batson today said, will be at the polls in 1928, when he will be a candidate for probate judge. He has made no plans for the present he said.

Work and Mead Hanged In Effigy

(Associated Press)

SCOTT'S BLUFF, Neb., May 28—Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, and Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation were hanged in effigy here last night by an angry group of farmers and citizens, who blamed them for failure of the government to supply the irrigated North Platte valley with needed water from the government project.

THREE-DAY MEET OF PIONEER CLUBS IN SESSION AT "Y"

Leaders Confer With J. E. Lewis, State Secretary

ROUND-UP SET FOR SATURDAY

Work Expected To Be Expanded Here As Result of Institute

An institute for Pioneer club leaders is being held at the Y. M. C. A. beginning Thursday night and continuing through Saturday night. It will close with a genuine Pioneer "roundup" for all members of the six Pioneer Clubs in Albany and the Hartselle club also the prospective members of two clubs which are in process of organization.

J. E. Lewis, state student and boy's work secretary, of Birmingham is conducting the institute and is bringing to the meetings a wealth of experience and close study of boy life, especially as it pertains to the boyhood of the south. Mr. Lewis, for five years, was boy's work secretary of Texas, coming to Alabama from that state one year ago. Mr. Lewis is also a graduate of William Jewell College of Missouri and the University of Chicago and has devoted his entire life to the problems of the younger boys.

Thursday night the Institute was held for leaders only and was attended by eight members, one being out of town, tonight the Chief Rangers and Deputy Rangers will meet with the leaders and a Pioneer council will be organized to be presided over by a boy elected from this group. The Saturday night program will be attended by all members of Pioneer clubs, with the following program:

Devotional period around Camp Fire, Roger Williams Club in charge. Model Pioneer Club meeting, John Calvin Club in charge. Reports of activities of all clubs. Report on council organization. Musical numbers and group singing. Weiners and lemonade. Short talk by J. E. Lewis. Dismiss. Camp fire and eats in charge of Walter Scott club.

Qualification Time Nears June Limits

Tuesday June 1 is the last day for qualification of candidates for county offices. County officers are already over contested and the campaign this fall promises to lead all other Morgan County elections in intensity and interest from the campaigner's viewpoint, according to opinions given today by observers. It was stated that there are still likely announcements for county offices, though people who have considered the places have not fully determined upon entering the various races.

Good Weather For Cotton Farmers

That the spring and summer season has been beneficial to the agricultural interest of Morgan County was evidenced today by J. C. Cain, Somerville section resident, who declared that farmers are busy in the fields today, "chopping out cotton." Mr. Cain declared that the present warm weather is proving beneficial to farmers of all classes.

WOMAN SOUGHT AS COMPANION OF TWO ACCUSED DEPUTIES

Montgomery Police Are Asked To Locate Mrs. Louise Scott

DENIAL MADE OF PRESENCE IN CAR

Sheriff Tom Shirley On Behalf of Son Says Men Were Alone

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 28—Mrs. Louise Scott, 20, said to have been the third occupant of the automobile with Byron Shirley and Dewey Barnett, sheriff's deputies of Jefferson County, at the time the deputies are alleged to have shot and killed John Jones, member of the state law enforcement department, was arrested here today as a material witness, and will be returned to Birmingham. Mrs. Scott denies she was in the automobile with Shirley and Barnett at the time Jones was slain.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28—The mysterious third person, who is alleged to have been an occupant of the automobile with Byron Shirley and Dewey Barnett, sheriff's deputies, Tuesday night when they killed John D. Jones, is Mrs. Louise Scott, and she is now in Montgomery, Solicitor Jim Davis said today.

Solicitor Davis has wired police in Montgomery to apprehend the woman as a witness. This is the first authoritative statement concerning the identity of this woman, about whom much speculation and many denials have centered.

Sheriff Thomas J. Shirley, on behalf of Byron Shirley, his son, and Barrett, his nephew, declared there was no woman with the deputies when they shot Jones.

J. C. Tate and two women in the Jones' car are reported to have said that there was a woman in the front seat of the Shirley car seated between Shirley and Barrett, when they fired on Jones. Solicitor Davis said it was reported to his office that the woman went to Montgomery immediately after the shooting.

After the action of the grand jury in indicting the two deputies on first degree murder charges, and the setting of the cases for June 14, Solicitor Davis declared that the state would be in readiness to go to trial and would give the action right-of-way.

Solicitor Davis added that an early trial was necessary because of the difficulty in retaining witnesses over a long period.

In all probability, Mr. Davis will have several assistants to aid in the prosecution and with Roderick Beddow representing the defense, probably one of the bitterest trials in Jefferson county criminal court annals will be fought out.

"We will present a strong case against the two officers," said Mr. Davis, "and nothing will be overlooked in presenting the true facts of the slaying of Jones to the jury. The state has every reason to believe that Jones was not the aggressor in the fatal shooting affair, and we will have witnesses to prove our contention."

Meanwhile Mr. Beddow was drawing up habeas corpus papers to present to the state. He declared the papers would be ready to serve on the solicitor's office today. If the state waives formal notice, the proceedings can be taken up immediately before any available circuit judge.

In event the state insists on the customary notice, the proceedings will necessarily be deferred five days.

The remaining stretch of the Somerville-Albany-Decatur highway is now under repair. Only a few yards of the road remained to be worked.

STORY

On the morning following the day of the primaries, when he was nominated for Governor, Gregory Cochran, on Molly Shannon at her mother's home in north Texas, Cochran had befriended her when she was a student at the State University. Molly rejoices in his success but fears it means the end of their warm friendship. She is more than delighted to see him because her life as a country school teacher has become drab and sordid.

"Oh, never mind the dirt. . . . He took out his handkerchief and wiped each separate finger with care, making quite a lengthy business of it. When he had finished he lifted the hands one at a time and brushed his lips against the cupped palms.

All the sudden riot of color slipped out of Molly's face. She drew her hands away and looked about vaguely for something to sit down on. Catching sight of the canopy of morning-glory vines beneath which Lenny had built a rustic seat, she moved off toward it, sank down limp and unnered, leaving Cochran to follow at his leisure.

For some moments neither of them spoke. Molly was not looking at him, but she knew he was sitting quietly, arms folded across his chest, eyes fixed straight in front of him. He looked so entirely his normal, natural self that she decided with a relieved catch of her breath the other must have been a dream. Maybe she was not yet fully awake. . . . When he glanced round at her presently with his old quizzical, friendly smile, she took courage to say—though still a little breathlessly: "I haven't told you yet how happy I am—I really am, you know," she laughed with returning confidence, "even if I was selfish enough to think maybe I wouldn't be!"

"You mean—the election?" She nodded. That was safer and easier than speech. The color was ebbing slowly back into her face, but the hand she put out to pluck a morning-glory leaf was not yet quite steady.

"Why did you think you wouldn't be glad?" She considered that while she stripped the leaf down to its heart-shaped green skeleton. She saw—too late—the trap she had laid for herself, but decided that absolute frankness was the best way back to the old comfortable footing.

"Because," she said, smiling, "someone suggested that as soon as you were elected, you'd be getting married, and—I didn't like to think of losing the best friend I have."

There was a moment's silence; then, "I am going to be married—at least, I think so. The lady of my heart hasn't committed herself yet by so much as a word or a glance, but—I have hope. . . ."

Molly went on looking at him without the quiver of an eyelash, but her fingers turned to ice and her heart plunged headlong into her white slippers and then stopped beating altogether.

Cochran turned a little and rested one hand against the back of the seat near her. "Molly darling," he said quietly, "don't you understand that I'm asking you to marry me? There isn't anybody else—there never has been anybody else—there never will be."

He stared back at him dumbly, sitting as motionless as if she had been converted suddenly into stone. At last, with a slight, uncertain gesture toward herself, she said on a half breath, "You can't mean me—that you want to marry me?"

He nodded. "That's exactly what I do mean," he confirmed, relieved apparently that at least he had the thing off his chest.

With conscious effort she released her gaze from his, let it travel to the hands lying lax and cold in her lap. But she did not see them; she did not see anything. She closed her eyes for a moment, and there was the same blankness of desolation about her. "But—you must know—how impossible that is. . . ." She glanced back at him with another little still-born movement of appeal, then on a breathless rush, "Oh, I do wish you hadn't—everything was so beautiful the way it was before."

Cochran's face whitened under the innumerable layers of bronze, but his eyes were friendly and quizzical. "You mean—you don't care for me?" he suggested judiciously.

There was a hurtful, importunate silence. Molly could not bring herself to say anything at all—her heart was pounding too convulsively, too anguishedly. Her eyes wandered away from his. She reached out for another morning-glory leaf and began to strip it with fingers that shook treacherously.

He reached out and covered fingers, leaf and all, with one big palm. "Because, if that's it," he said in his most detached, impersonal tone, "the quicker we get back to the old footing, the better. But I must know—I can't go on uncertainties. You see—he gave her an odd, deprecating smile—"It means rather a lot to me."

There was another silence, more painful than the last. Molly could feel his will, his determination to get at the truth, beating against her, threatening to cave in the flimsy walls of her resolve. But still she made no sign.

"Of course, I could be sure," he went on after a time, "but the last few times I've been here, I thought you seemed so glad to see me. . . ." He smiled again, appealing, almost apologetic—waited. When Molly neither spoke nor looked up, he gave her hands a slight, dismissing pressure and rose. "Forgive me, I see you've never thought of me in that character, and it's displeasing to you. I should have had better judgment, I'm forty and you are twenty-three—that's reason enough. Anyway, I'm glad you've been so honest with me—I knew you would be that."

Molly looked up at him through such a blur of anguish that she could not see him at all until the blur had precipitated in a miniature rain of tears. Then she leaned forward and caught one of his hands between hers. "I love you so much," she said simply, "that until you spoke I didn't even know I loved you. But"—she let go his hand and sat staring down numbly at the grass which she was turning up with the toe of her slipper—"I can never marry anyone—least of all, you."

Cochran got a long breath. "Oh—so that's the trouble, is it?" His face had undergone a most remarkable transformation. He reached down and pulled her up to him, one hand on either shoulder. "But why—least of all me?"

"Because I love you too much to want to ruin you."

"Ruin me? Nonsense! You're nothing but a child dreaming about hobgoblins!" Molly got a long, convulsive breath, made a single despairing movement of negation—then his lips covered hers. He crushed her down—consumed her. She knew that she was lost—they were both lost.

When at last she stumbled away from him, putting out her hands to the trellis behind her for support, neither of them spoke for some moments. She was first to break the still pulsing silence: "You didn't let me finish. It's not only that I'm afraid of ruining you, and that I'm not good enough. But—your mother—she hates and despises me—she would never be reconciled."

"That's her problem, don't you think? Besides—I'm not asking you to marry my mother; I'm asking you to marry me!"

"It would be a crushing blow. I can picture her bitter disappointment."

"It would be in any case. That's the penalty for having an only child. Don't think I'm not fond of my mother; I quite adore her. But I haven't the slightest intention of sacrificing our happiness to her. Now—if those trifling details are satisfactorily disposed of. . . ."

Five minutes later Mrs. Shannon, made a party to the momentous event, but not looking so completely astounded as Molly felt she ought, was pondering the enigma why a girl who never cried and who had just been asked in marriage by a man she adored should have the telltale marks of recent tears on her face. It was all of a piece, though, with the puzzling mass of anomalies and contradictions that was her eldest daughter.

Leopold Refuses To Be Witness

(Associated Press)

JOLIET, Ill., May 28.—Nathan Leopold refused to testify today before a coroner's jury investigating the murder of Deputy Warden Peter Klein, of the state prison, by seven escaping convicts on May 5. Leopold is serving a life sentence for the slaying of Robert Franks. The youth, who viewed the slaying of the warden from his solitary confinement cell and who, had already said he refused an opportunity to flee with the convicts, declined to tell the jury anything about the circumstances of the escape fearing that to do so would incur the enmity of his fellow convicts.

Powell To Speak Here Saturday

J. N. Powell, of Falkville, candidate for one of the two legislative places from Morgan County, will speak Saturday evening on Second avenue, he announced today. Mr. Powell stated he would discuss the planks of his platform, previously published in The Daily.

SMALL MEETINGS PLANNED

Two lectures to be delivered here in the near future by Dr. Sam Small are now being advertised for May 31 and June 1. Dr. Small will speak upon the 'Devil in the Schoolhouse.' He comes here in the interest of the Bob Jones College at Panama City, Florida, which college is attempting to place students in position to attend school who are not able to finance themselves. Announcements for the meetings will be made at a later date.

The Elektrik Maid Bake Shop, F. A. Laurendine, proprietor, will open Saturday on Second avenue, next to E. L. Thomas. The new bakery will employ a force of about seven, it is understood, L. J. Pettet and Howard Seitz, well known local young men have accepted positions with the new firm.

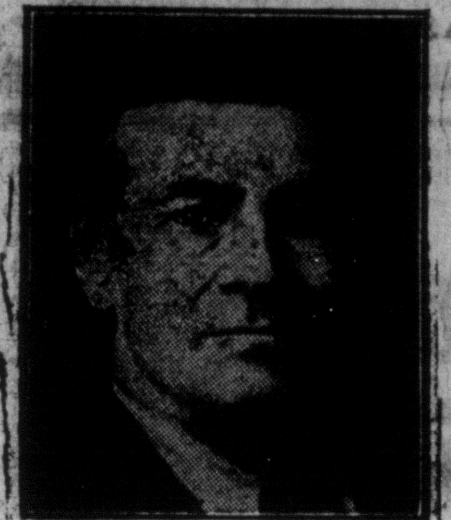

Rogers To Be Here Early In Month

John A. Rogers, chairman of the Alabama Highway department, is expected to arrive here between June 5 and 15, it is understood here today. Chairman Rogers will probably visit the Valley in an inspection tour of the road situation in this end of the state and in an explanation of the terms and provisions of the $75,000,000 bond issue.

ANOTHER BELLEVILLE MAN REJOICES

Says That After All Other Remedies Failed The Highly Recommended and Much Praised Herbal Remedy Known As Herb Juice Brought Relief

"There is no use in talking, one just cannot appreciate the real honest to goodness satisfaction and relief that they can really get from your wonderful Herbal remedy known as Herb Juice until after they have taken it, because lots of people told me how good it was and praised it very highly yet, I did not think it was anything like as wonderful as I found it to be. And I am glad to give this public statement in its behalf," said Mr. Nick Flach, who resides at 612 South Church street, Belleville, Ill., in a recent conversation with the special representative.

MR. NICK FLACH

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Flach said, "For a good long time I have been in a very poor state of health generally speaking. My whole system seemed to be out of whack and I was run down all over. I could not sleep at night; could not eat and enjoy it; was dreadfully constipated and was afflicted with many other ailments which go with constipation. And I, like many other suffering as I did, was forever searching for something that would give me relief, but am frank to say that I never found it until at last I tried your great laxative preparation known as Herb Juice. This remedy seemed to just take hold of me from the start. I continued taking it regularly and today I am happy to say that I feel like a new man. It has completely reconstructed my entire system. I never suffer any more from constipation or those sleepless nights and I can now eat anything I want and really enjoy it. I have plenty of energy and am now eager to go about my daily work. I know beyond a question of a doubt that this great herbal preparation is the best medicine that I have ever taken and it has my hearty endorsement and best wishes."

CHANGE THE DIET IF PELLAGRA COMES

Its Digestive Disturbance Has Been Traced to Having Too Much Corn in the Diet, Causing an Intestinal Disorder.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FOR many years it was believed that spoiled maize or corn used in the diet was the cause of a serious disease, called pellagra. Investigations made by the United States Public Health Service have shown that eating corn is not sufficient to cause pellagra. But they advise very strongly against its forming the principal part of the dietary. This suggestion applies to corn, cereals and other corn products.

Through the South and Middle West of the United States there is the greatest prevalence of pellagra. However, it is found in Canada, too.

The first symptoms of pellagra are distress in the digestive organs. Among these are nausea, gas formation, and, of course, diarrhea. The diarrhea of pellagra is not the ordinary attack of this ailment. The victim of pellagra finds it difficult to control the bowel action, and the discharges are expelled with great force. The stools are offensive, having the odor of putrefying material.

The skin symptoms are conspicuous, but they are late to appear. They are first noticed on the exposed portions of the body and may look not unlike sunburn. There may be spots or groups of eruptions. These disappear after a few days, leaving the skin rough and scaly.

The backs of the hands, the wrists, the legs and feet are most commonly affected. Sometimes the skin eruptions develop into raw bleeding surfaces. Burning of the mouth, swelling of the tongue and itching of the skin are other symptoms.

In the treatment of pellagra, proper hygiene and diet are essential. It has been found that this disease is more common in hot weather than in cold. Therefore, the sufferer will be greatly helped by being kept in a cool room.

Corn and corn products, and the coarse vegetables should be avoided. Sweet milk, buttermilk, steak, lamb chops, white meat of chicken, the finer vegetables should be included in the diet.

Rectal injections of bismuth will help the diarrhea. The doctor will advise flushing of the bowel. Hypophosphite of soda, one ounce to one pint of water, mopped on the skin will relieve the itching.

If there is soreness of the mouth, some alkaline wash will be refreshing and helpful. This is not a contagious disease in the ordinary sense and seclusion is not necessary.

Answers to Health Queries

T. J. J. Q.—My baby is very restless in her sleep, could this be due to worms?

A.—Possibly this is due to worms. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

T. T. Q.—What should a girl of twenty-one, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weigh? What do you advise for round shoulders?

A.—You should weigh about 140 pounds.

2. If you cannot remember to hold your shoulders erect, a properly fitted shoulder brace should be helpful. Copyright, 1926, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

2 Group Meetings Scheduled Sunday

Two group meetings have been scheduled by the B. Y. P. U. for Sunday, it was announced today, this being necessary in order to get around the circuit before the opening of the Mentone assembly, for which delegates will leave June 6.

The group conference will open in Falkville, with Miss Rena Jenkins as chairman. Miss Elsie Johnson will speak on "The Why of the B. Y. P. U." Rev. B. P. Collier will speak on "The Possibilities of the B. Y. P. U." and W. E. Nethery's subject will be "Goal for the present association year." Miss Madeline Dix will talk on "Why go to Mentone." Following a round table discussion and other features, the speakers will go to Bethel, where another conference will begin at 4:30 o'clock.

Proving that graduation is an event in the lives of others, as well as in the lives of graduates, the Princess Theatre started filling Thursday evening by seven o'clock. It is an event which the public may well recognize, these students are about to become substantial citizens, graduation is only a preliminary for their baptism of fire and the public wants them to know that everybody is back of them and hoping they may do well.

NEED FOR FURTHER STIMULATION

Addresses like that of Judge Hugh Allan Locke, distinguished Alabama jurist, directed toward the graduation class and the immense audience packing the Princess Theatre on Thursday night are worthy of commendation. Judge Locke asked that students upon entering the world pray for knowledge of their daily tasks, render service and fear God, setting a definite goal to be realized when the race is done. Judge Locke electrified his audience as few speakers on such occasion have done and it is unpleasant to think that there were many who could not avail themselves of the opportunity for hearing a Christian message from a Christian gentleman. It is difficult to keep in the paths and methods of Judge Locke suggested, so often do we need stimulation in mind and body. We mean well all the time, but a great many find that stimulation is a vast need, stimulation applied all the time in order that our welfare and the welfare of those about us might be increased. Like automobiles when out of gasoline, we go so far and stop. We are satisfied with the routine of life, looking out of our own little window we are able to see but that portion or section of the landscape of life which our little window happens to allow us to take in view. This satisfaction makes us commonplace, good workers, faithful workers, good lovers, but perhaps only performing a part of the duties of which we are capable. It is the need for further stimulation. It is regretted that such straight forward and masterful talks as that delivered by Judge Locke cannot be poured into our ears and brains every day that our pace may be quickened, our minds kept alert and our spirit toward those about us clean and noble.

ARTHUR JONES TO TELL THE NATION'S CIVIC LEADERS WHAT'S GOING ON HERE

A. A. Jones, president of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club has been allotted eight minutes to tell the assembled Kiwanians in convention at Montreal what program the Kiwanis club here is carrying on, the service it is rendering to the public, the real worth of the civic institution to our cities and section. We are betting on Arthur to bring more attention to rest on the Tennessee Valley and Albany-Decatur. Mr. Jones is not a speaker who will electrify his hearers, but his quiet and pleasant personality, his plain way of presenting facts will probably have more effect upon the assembled hosts of business men from the four corners of the United States and Canada than all the oratory with which any United States Senator might stir a crowd into throwing up their hats and shouting, "Hurrah I'm a Democrat." Mr. Jones has a mission before him in addressing the Kiwanis convention and he will get results, else the local Kiwanis unit would not have selected him as the leader of their program. Kiwanians value their program, they value their worth, that is why they have been worth so much to the cities of Albany-Decatur and Morgan county in the years since their establishment here. It is a pleasure to have such an organization in the midst, a right hand to lean upon, a body of men to help at any time they may be assigned a task. The Daily believes the people of the Twin Cities recognize the value of the civic club, else so many calls would not be made upon its membership to come out and help.

PARKING SPACE DESTINED TO GO THE WAY OF THE COW PASTURE IN THE CITY

Parking space, the question eternal, in cities large and small, says Morgan Collins, general superintendent of police in the city of Chicago is destined to go the way of the city cow pasture of thirty to forty years ago. That is gratifying for then we shall not feel that we have missed anything. That will be one jump in history we flew over without even landing.

Albany-Decatur has parking regulation, traffic regulation, but it is not adequately regulated. Were this not the case then taxi drivers would not practice halting in the middle of busy business thoroughfares to take on or discharge passengers. Evil wrinkles would not becloud the brows of motorists who are in the rear of the taxi manipulators as the former are required to jam on all brakes, grab the emergency and swing on the steering wheel with all their might to prevent bumping into the rear of the suddenly halted car.

This situation, to the knowledge of The Daily, has not produced any accidents of real damage in the cities, we do not know that anyone has been killed or injured, anyone even scratched, but we do know that well regulated city traffic ordinances specify that people shall not stop in the middle of business blocks, swirl to the left of "silent" policemen, take to the inside on turning corners. As we admit, so far as we know there have not been serious accidents recorded thus far, but this does not stand to reason that there are not going to be serious accidents. A dog may be ten years old and never have developed rabies, then bite somebody and the Pasteur treatment is recommended. The city traffic laws are made to obey and we are unable to find that they specify that drivers of vehicles, motor, horse, or bicycle shall stop in the middle of the street to take on or discharge passengers, halt for a chat with your neighbor, or stop long enough to collect a bill. Think it over, the next fellow who gets bumped may be you. If it's your neighbor that certainly won't make much difference, but it may be you and that will make a whole lot of difference. If you don't know the traffic laws ask an officer, or better go to the city halls of our cities and ask for codes of the traffic regulations.

THE REFRESHING SMALL TOWN NEWSPAPER, A COMPARISON

Pick up the press of the larger city. Everything about the world, but nothing about folks you know. A great deal of the material you read there is in stilted language, some of it so tremendous as to baffle a college graduate. Then pick up the home paper and as they say about soft drinks, "My, how refreshing." The home town paper is just full of the doings about your neighbors, just full of the things about towns you are interested in, tells you all about so and so's wedding, about the graduation exercises in which Sally Jones received her diploma and about Bill Smith's mule going on a rampage night before last and kicking Bill in the stomach. Turn to the editorial page and there more than likely you will find that the home town editor has discussed some problem that is close to home. He could probably wade into a long article about something on the outside, but after all he is tremendously interested in the people about him, even as you are, and he likes to talk about how they live, how they ought to live, perhaps criticizing himself for he is just as much at fault that the town isn't fifty years ahead of the times as you are. Then pick up the social page and you read all about who's here and who's gone and who's coming to town. There's something nice been said about your favorite Missionary Society, there's mighty little knocking to be found in the whole paper, only an occasional dig when the editor gets hot in the collar when he feels that something civic should receive the attention of the citizens and his editorship. Back on the sport page, there it is in big letters, Babe Ruth has hit another home run. That's just what you were looking for anyhow. It's refreshing, these home town newspapers talk about everything you know about and if it didn't come the afternoon why you sorter wonder if the editor hasn't got it in for you anyway, because he is always busy saying something that interests you indirectly.

It's mighty fine to pick up the home publication in the afternoon and know that you are going to read something about yourself and your neighbor and that you won't have to wade through a ream of paper to find it either.

BANKHEAD-KILBY DEBATE WILL DRAW INTEREST OF THE ENTIRE STATE

Judge Leon McCord, campaign manager of Judge Mayfield, senatorial candidate, has issued a statement ridiculing the proposed joint debate between Thomas E. Kilby and John H. Bankhead, also senatorial candidates.

Judge McCord's statement was given to the press prior to the acceptance by Mr. Kilby of the Bankhead challenge, with modifications, and the acceptance by Mr. Bankhead of the Kilby challenge, and he inquires: "What do the people of Alabama care about the disputes of these two men?"

The Daily may be unduly inmodest in attempting to speak for the Tennessee Valley, but The Daily, nevertheless is convinced that the people of North Alabama are tremendously interested in what differences, if there be any, in the positions of Mr. Kilby and Mr. Bankhead as regards Muscle Shoals. Judge McCord, it is to be hoped, has not forgotten that the original point at issue was the position of the two candidates regarding Muscle Shoals. It is true that since the first development, oral agreements have been made to allow other issues also to be discussed, but the Shoals proposition remains as the principal issue for discussion.

It appears sometimes that the rest of the state does not correctly gauge the intense interest in this section in Muscle Shoals. What men of affairs have to say about this gigantic Alabama project always is interesting up here. Particularly interesting will be the expressions from two men, one of whom may speak soon with the voice of an official of this commonwealth.

Here are two candidates seeking the highest office within the gift of the people of Alabama. Now before congress, and likely to be there for sometime, is an issue in which the fortunes and happiness of the people of the Tennessee Valley are linked. Is there any wonder that the people of the Tennessee Valley would like to hear these two candidates discuss their positions on this question?

Judge McCord may be "miffed" because Judge Mayfield is not one of the actors in the playlet soon to be presented by Messrs. Bankhead and Kilby. The Daily hastens to assure him that the people of the Valley would be delighted to hear expressions from Judge Mayfield on this subject.

The Daily does not intend this editorial expression as a reflection on Judge McCord, nor on Judge Mayfield, for both of whom it has the highest respect. At the same time, The Daily does desire to emphasize the fact that North Alabama is interested in what the candidates have to say, whether their remarks are made in joint debate or otherwise.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

(More About Roads)

In the Daily of April 20, 1926, we stated that the Morgan County board of revenue has appropriated $5,000 for the repair and rebuilding Morgan County roads. In the minds of the people much conjecture is rife about what the result of this appropriation will mean concerning the roads they must travel. In the statement of the Daily it is promised that a location of the several roads to be placed under repair will be made soon later but this statement does not in any way lead one to believe that all the roads so badly in need of repair will receive any attention whatever. Nothing is mentioned to lead one to believe that the Post roads and other roads leading to the county pikes and state highway will receive any attention and the bridges, so neglected all over the country, are not mentioned at all. The officials in charge of Morgan County's welfare seem to be welded to the idea that one way pikes are the only roads necessary for travel throughout the county. One idea which appears prevalent with them is that bridges are not very necessary to the fare of the traveling public.

They seem to hold to the idea that people can travel on the pikes to the pikes and then ford the creeks when they are low enough to ford and when they are not low enough to ford just to ford on the pikes till they are low enough to be forded and then proceed on the trip.

The main idea is, apparently, to let the people under the hypnotic influence of believing that all the public road building or road repairing money must be wasted or half successfully spent on the little one way pikes of the county for the next ten or twenty years or ages to come, regardless of all other road and bridge work throughout the county. Many have expressed themselves as voting, in the past, for men whom they thought could be trusted to do just this state of affairs and because of failure, they do not now know to vote for in order to have the statement made. Has Morgan County sunk into that disgraceful depth which no candidate can be trusted to fulfill his campaigning promises or he is elected to office? Just the crop of candidates is simply reproduction and all of them try to ride to topmost fame on the two great issues which have been on the loudest and with most sentiment tone of sincerity during the pangs of the last twenty years to be nearly forgotten after the election or between elections. These great issues are: better roads and education.

Remember a saying which runs in these words: "You can fool all the people all the time but you cannot fool all the people every time." People of Alabama have almost on that statement untrue. We are lobsbers that are fooled every time.

Was there hypocrisy among the lobsbers and the Pharisees? Sure, we are a nation of their modern lobsbers.

Why does Morgan County waste most all of its public road money on the one way pikes? A seven old school boy can very readily see the fallibility of such practice. It is an unwise, inequitable and decided to one class of roads disservice of the county road and bridge by those who have the matter large.

They tell us that they have built the way pikes and that it is necessary to repair or rebuild them every one, three or five years, else the moment in building them will be lost. The fact that these roads are repaired or rebuilt every one or two years is sufficient to thoroughly convince us that the first money spent in building them was wasted. Money first built is nothing but continued waste because they were substantially built to begin with. This practice means that the Morgan County public road and bridge money must be wasted on the one way pikes, to the neglect and detriment of all other roads and bridges throughout the county, for the next years and ages to come if such officials succeed themselves or if others like policy are elected to fill places.

Any of the other roads leading to county pikes and state highway just as important or more important than some of the one way pikes on which this money is being spent. True the one way pikes are a great help to the county welfare, general, but they should not be as a source of demoralizing, obnoxious and ruining practice against Post roads and other roads and bridges of the county.

The first place Morgan County never had one mile of pike road properly built. They have been half with much of the money wasted in the process of their half building. The result we will refer any one that part of the Somerville pike from the "Fishdam" bridge on Flint creek, to Somerville, Ala.

This piece of pike was once half built, then repaired.

Our National Constitution provides that the Post roads shall be kept up and maintained next to the railroads of the country and this was the foremost intent of the good roads legislation advocated by Alabama's greatest statesman, the late John M. Bankhead. The National good roads association is still thinking of this need as one of the most essential branches of road building. The state highway associations of some states and the county boards of revenue with others in charge of local road welfare have totally ignored this very necessary branch of road building. In Morgan County not one single effort has been put forth to repair some parts of the Post roads for the past eight years.

These ten and twelve mile stretches of the Post roads and other roads leading to the pikes and state highway have thus been neglected till now they are in a deplorable condition and a burden of disgraceful shame on the neck of duty possessed by our county officials having the matter under their jurisdiction.

Doctors, County Demonstrators, preachers, school teachers and all other needed members to every community's health, life and general welfare, no longer use the horse and buggy but must use the car and when a doctor is called to see a patient in the rural district he must park his car on the pike and walk through the mud one, two or five miles to reach the patient, or depend on some neighbor to meet him with the mule and buggy at the little one way pike in order to save a life or relieve death like suffering. Frequently he loses much in time and practice because he could not reach the bedside sooner. His business demands that he has a car and uses it. His car demands a good road if he does use it and where he uses it.

A patient back in the city may need quick attention or a patient in some country home might pass away while the doctor is waiting for the mule and buggy to come to the pike to meet him.

Think of a lady home demonstrator stuck in the mud, alone, two miles away from the pike because the first half mile of road leading from the pike looked fair and trusty to the driver.

Linked to this is another great evil going unnoticed by our County officials. The robbery of County road work or road money by those of road working age. This robbery amounts to about $20,000 annually, and as it has been neglected for the last eight years the county is now due the astonishing sum of $160,000, enough money to pave all the Post roads between the county pikes and state highway like Bank street of Decatur if real road builders could have the chance of managing it. This robbery if directly carried on by bank robbers would cause them to go to the state and federal penitentiaries for a number of years and maybe for life if they remained in the county. Still this robbery is backed up, apparently. Think of it, gentlemen, and figure it out fairly to your own mind's content when I am through with this write-up. There are 2,000 men of road working age on the farms of Morgan County and others working in the road districts. But let us estimate the total at just 2,000. At ten days work or ten dollars loss annually, per man, we have $20,000 due and uncollected every year and as this has been the condition for the past eight years we are due $160,000 but because of the backing to the robbery we cannot collect it.

To make this robbery plain to all we will begin here to give the cause and condition under which it is being perpetrated.

Under the old Alabama Road law, all male citizens of sound mind and body were required to serve 8 or 10 days on the county roads or pay their time off in cash to the overseer, etc. The law under consideration was fixed some six or eight years ago to require these citizens to pay $10.00 or work ten days. On this act we find the basis for my estimate of the robbery.

For the past six or eight years this law, we are told by those in authority, has been null and void by other unwise state legislation which made a new road law and failed to repeal the old road law thereby automatically making both laws ineffective so far as this source of road income is concerned. At this point I want to make some calculations to show how Morgan County is losing $20,000 annually which should be put to service on the roads.

From Flint creek on the Bee Line highway to Fairview I will say there are 50 men of road working age under the old road law. Now the highway is maintained by the state and the road time of these men cannot be assigned to the highway but it could be assigned to the Post road serving their home with the mail or to some other road near their place of residence which is necessary to the public welfare. Their time at ten days work or ten dollars would mean $500.00 to the road on which their time was assigned. Again I will say there are 200 men of road working age from Fairview to one mile south east of Priceville on the Somerville pike. But the Somerville pike is maintained by the County and their road time cannot be assigned to it. The road time of these 200 men should be assigned to the Post road serving mail to their home or some other road not kept up by the state or county. The road time of these 200 men at ten days work or ten dollars would mean $2,000.00 to the Post road serving their home or some other important road. This gives us $2,500.00 clear of all money now being used on any of the roads of Morgan County. Now, from one-half mile southeast of Priceville to Flint creek bridge on the Bee Line highway, two miles south of Flint and the point from which I first started, there are about twelve miles of mud and rock road composing a Post road which is not maintained by the state or county. No repair work has been done on this piece of Post road for eight years, except about one mile in the middle of it which is kept up by an individual farmer. On this stretch of road there are 32 men of road working age and their road time could be assigned to this piece of road and is due to be worked by them but if they should choose to pay off their road time, here we have another $320 to apply on this twelve miles of Post road, bringing the total up to $2,820 to be used annually on twelve miles of Post road thereby giving $218.33 1-3 per mile to this piece of Post road and this amount honestly spent for five or ten years would pave every mile of that Post road between the Bee Line highway and the Somerville pike. If the present road law is not such that this manner of assigning road time can be resorted to, it is imperative that our legislators and the people request the Governor to call an extra session of the legislature and amend or repeal enough of the present road law to allow such assigning of road time and further require that each member of the county board of revenue must take a census of the men that are road working age in his respective road district not later than the first day of March in each year. This provision of our road law should require that all men of road age work or pay off their road time to the extent that they would have their road time assigned to the nearest Post road or other important road not kept up by the state or county provided they were not required to travel over ten miles from their place of residence to perform such road service.

The writer and all others now past road working age were required to serve the ten days or pay ten dollars. There is no excuse for the bad road conditions of our county and if only reasonable interest was manifest by our county officials the farmers, who have served their time on the roads, and the rural mail carriers would not have to drive over the county through channels of rock piles, mud holes and washed out gullies to get to market and to do their duty as government employees. It would be nothing more than the Constitutional right and duty of every rural carrier of mail to vote for and ask his patrons to vote for only such men for county officials as would manifest an interest in the Post roads by having actual work done on them. It is imperative that all Post roads be built standard with the county pikes so mail carriers can use cars, since the traffic on county pikes and state highways has become almost entirely by car service making it hazardous and dangerous for horse drawn vehicles to be used on such thoroughfares.

Some of the statesmen want to offer the plan of taxing vehicles to keep up the county roads but this plan would work unfairly to some of our citizens. Those who drive the vehicles are generally hired hands and those who own the vehicles frequently reside out of the district in which they use roads. Not only this but much of the travel is by those who live out of the county and state. Even if the vehicle tax should be resorted to, the old law of work ten days or pay ten dollars by all male citizens between the ages of 21 years and 45 years should be re-established. To this should be added the convict labor of the law violators of each respective county. With this kind of a road program carried forth in an honest manner, the whole state of Alabama can have good roads in every remote section at the expiration of ten or fifteen years. The work ten days or pay ten dollars should go to the Post roads or other roads not being wholly kept up by the state or county.

In all the cities men between the ages of 21 years and 45 years are required to pay a street tax in lieu of this same road tax. Paying street tax exempts one of road age from doing road service and a law that exempts a man of road working age from doing road service or paying it off should also exempt a man of the same age from paying street tax. To require the city man to pay street tax and let the country man go without paying a road tax is an unfair discrimination of our law between the two classes of citizens. It is unfair and unjust to the most unworthy extent. If the condition continues it is but a short time till the city street tax payers will go after a law that will abolish street tax collecting.

Yours truly,

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens, and have known a very nice young gentleman for a long time. I like this young man very much but I haven't seen him for some time now. Could you tell me how to regain his friendship?

BROWN EYES: I suggest that you invite this young man to call on you. Miss Brown Eyes. If he is really interested in you he will be delighted to accept the invitation and use it as a means to renew your friendship. Of course, if he does not accept, you must understand that he does not wish to continue your friendship—and you must try to forget him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and am in love with a very good-looking young man. He sometimes seems to like me and then again he doesn't. Please tell me how to gain his love.

JERRY: If you share this young man's tastes and interests—if you have aims and ideals in common—then it should not be difficult for you to make your friendship with him a lasting one. But as for love, that is another story, Jerry. You cannot, in any way, force love or even foster it. It must come naturally, and of itself. And until that time comes don't worry about it!

MISS HUNT GIVES PARTY

Miss Clara Berry Hunt was a gracious young hostess of Thursday afternoon, entertaining some of her friends at bridge. Her home was prettily decorated with a profusion of early summer flowers on this occasion.

High score trophy was won by Miss Mary Battle Hendrix, the second prize to Miss Lucille Giles and Miss Mary Wallace Smiley cut the consolation.

Those invited to enjoy this hospitality were Misses Peggy Davis, Mary Battle Hendrix, Elizabeth Malone, Adele Polytinsky, Bernice Himes, Suzanne Jones, Vivien Fleming, Ellen Hildreth, Mary Wallace Smiley, Mary Bronough, Louise Anderson, Imogene Nungester, Julia Leigh Lynn, Loudie Moore Pointer, Emmie Frances Polhill, Helen Kingsolving, Lucille Giles, Carolyn Fussell, Frances Mason and Mary Bethany Fitzgerald.

DANCE FOR SENIORS

Miss Julia Leigh Lynn entertained the Seniors of the Decatur high school at a dance on Tuesday night.

MISS GILES ENTERTAINS

Miss Lucille Giles was hostess on Monday evening after class night exercises, at a party for the Seniors at her home on East Church street.

Mrs. Fanny Nance, of Hartselle, Mrs. Villa Ryan, of Eya, and Mrs. John Anderson Beatty of Lawrence county, were among the out-of-town guests that attended the graduation exercises of the Albany high school on Thursday night.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been going with a young man one year my senior for over a year. We have been engaged for six months. He says he loves me, but he very often goes out with other girls. Is it proper for him to call on other girls when he is engaged to me?

TOMBOY: Since you are engaged, it is your privilege to ask your fiancé to give up his other friends. Miss Tomboy. It isn't fair to you if he invites other girls out, since you have restricted your friendships. Explain this to him, and I don't think he will think it important enough to argue about—if he loves you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

When a man accompanies a girl home from a party or a meeting, should she ask him to call again? CHANGEABLE EYES: She may invite him to call again if she wishes, or else she may wait until he asks permission. There is no rule of etiquette which governs this.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of the paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Reporter's Apology Accepted By Judge

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 23—A citation for contempt against Hugh Sparrow, a reporter for the Birmingham News, was today dismissed at a hearing before Judge W. L. Parks. Sparrow wrote a story in which he said that some of the members of a jury slept during proceedings in the S. R. Bateson impeachment trial.

Sparrow apologized to the court, saying he meant no disrespect. He said that the jurors who had their eyes closed might have been resting them. He probably was mistaken, he asserted in saying they were asleep. Judge Parks accepted a statement and freed the reporter. He said that some of the jurors had complained that the newspaper had said they slept while the trial proceeded.

gone?

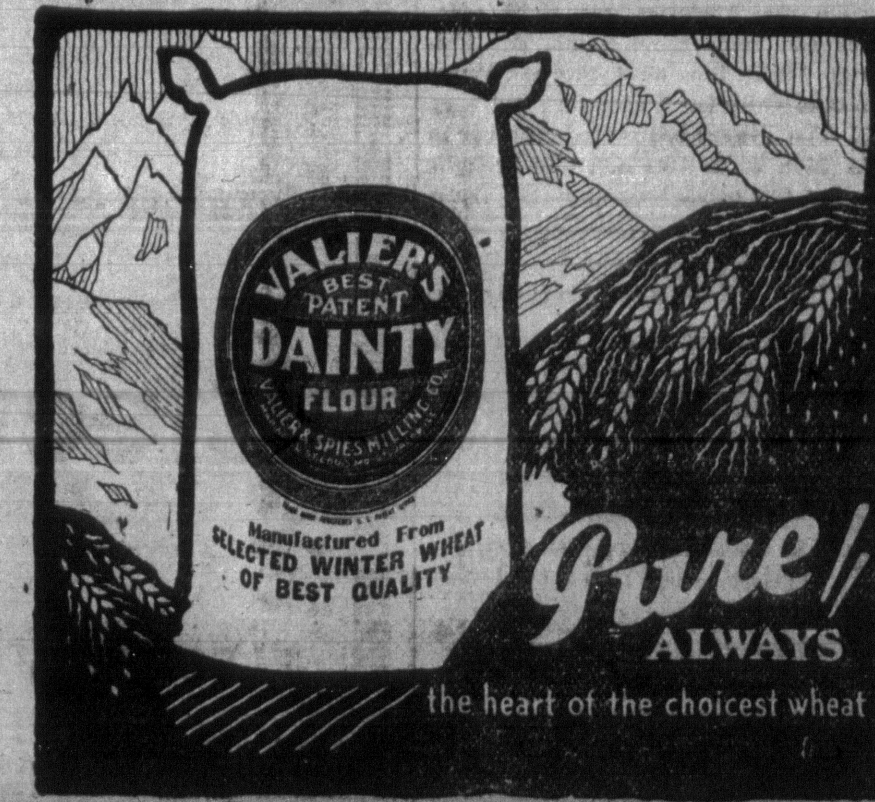

REMEMBER, how it used to be when you could hardly wait for mealtime? And then, sit down and eat several helpings of everything—enjoy every morsel and get up from the table feeling satisfied with the World, happy with everybody and ready for anything?

But what a difference in living when even the sight and smell of food sickens you! Never hungry—no matter how tempting the food is—nothing tasting right. And then, after nibbling at a few bites, feeling worse than ever.

Oh, life is hardly worth living this way. And yet, all in the World the matter with you is that you are starving for rich, red blood. And it is acknowledged everywhere that S. S. S. helps Nature build these healthy red-blood-cells by the millions!

All you need to do to get back that wonderful appetite is to build rich, red-blood-cells with S. S. S. It's simple. Just try it, like thousands are doing every day. See for yourself what S. S. S. will do. S. S. S. means blood with a punch—brimful of new life and energy. Get your S. S. S. at any good druggist. The larger size is more economical.

"It will all come out in the wash," said the contractor as he looked at the bridge he had just built.

My Sweet

Is as selfish as a gum slot-machine. Is so fickle she couldn't even keep her mind on a toothache.

Has beauty which needs lessons in dazling.

Is as cold as a rich uncle.

Is so modest she sets her watch back to keep it from getting fast.

Is so dense she thinks that seal-skin coats grow on fir trees.

That U. S. Mint is a kind of chewing gum.

And that all brokers are of stocky build.

Is as smooth as sand paper.

Couldn't even remember an operation.

And is as full of pep as a bank-clerk on a holiday.

Life

How brief our span, a day, an hour
A wintry blast, a May flower
Murky pools and stars above,
Tears and laughter, hate and love,
Sun and storm cloud, song and strife.

Good morning and how soon good-night.

Julius, I think those slow-motion pictures are tiresome.

Caesar, This isn't a slow-motion picture. This is a view of a plumber working at top speed.

Your handwriting is good; but can you write shorthand? Applicant for stenographer's job. Oh, yes, but it takes me longer.

Pressing

Some are pressed for time

The flapper's pressed for pleasure,
By one who calls her "honey."
Since pressing is an art
With those who pay no forfeit,
The cleaner is the only one
Who presses for a profit.

SPORTS

Barons In Lead By A Full Game As Pels Drop To Vols; Cincinnati Takes A Pair

Birmingham is leading the Southern League pile by a full game, something that is out of the ordinary. Barons trampled Little Rock under foot yesterday 8-2 while the Vols were breaking the Pels to a 5-1 fast. Memphis managed to keep her nose above the water line with a 4-3 win over the Crackers.

Grant Gillis, Baron shortfielder went hitless for the afternoon, he and Dave, Roser, while other Barons were hitting the agate to the far corners of the lot. Ganzel hit for the circuit in the first frame and the Barons had enough runs to tie the verdict. They won it in the third when they pushed across another marker.

Birmingham now leads by a full game, having won 27 and lost 14 while New Orleans pulls up with having won 27 and lost 16. Memphis and Nashville are tied in third place while Mobile and Atlanta are tied for the leadership of the second division.

Cincinnati apparently struck her pennant stride again yesterday with a double win over the Cards from St. Louis and it was well for the Cubs who are occupying the second rung of the National ladder were hoisting a victory above the pennant winning hopes of the Pirates. Carl Mays was a winning hurler for the Reds yesterday and that is something worth nothing. That submarine artist seldom wins a game though he seems to have the stuff to go with major league hurlers. Cincy rarely ever gives him any steam with the bludgeon. His game yesterday was a 2-1 affair. Pete Donohue won the first 4-3.

Philadelphia was busy forcing the Dodgers to divide a pair, taking the first verdict from the Brooklyn with Jess Petty at the helm. Petty allowed but eight hits, but the Phillies converted that amount into three runs while the Dodgers were crossing the pan but once. Brooklyn took the second 5-1.

Over in the American league interest of fandom was considerably deadened with the flying Yanks not scheduled to play. The Athletics were busy taking another kink out of the arm of Sir Walter Johnson, Sir Walter has fared badly this year against the Athletics and yesterday was hampered in the late innings, the Phillies winning some 3-2. Washington got 12 hits, wasted most of them, while the Athletics got eight safeties and made them count. The Chicago White Sox went twelve innings to take away the Tyger jinx and bury it. The Tygers committed an error in the 12th while two Sox hits brought across the needed counter. St. Louis

There are all kinds of cheap printing—but none of it is really cheap—at least not on a basis of value. Cheap stuff is usually worth almost what it costs. Our printing isn't the cheapest you can get, but it's as good as the best.

Red Grange has left the movie lots out in California and is back in Wheaton, Ill., where he will again go through the toils of ice toting for the summer months. Red is getting in shape for the coming professional season when he will again lead his untied charges to the gridiron against another row of folks of equally murderous intent. The Wheaton Ice Man has fared well with the movies, but professional football pays a pretty tidy sum, even for a movie star.

If your feet were permitted to choose the shoes they have to wear, they would express their positive preference for Osteo-path-iks—because these shoes are comfortable all over, right at the start.

Extra roominess for the toes; a firm snug arch that prevents slipping forward; and a narrow glove-fitting heel that won't let the foot slide up and down—this construction, plus absence of tacks in heels—is why Osteo-path-iks make walking thoroughly enjoyable.

See your local shoe dealer for the actual proof, or write us.
